

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Salmon River

Re: Salmon River

Author: : JeffK

Date: : 2012/8/23 9:06:06

URL:

The last biologist report I read had 40% of the kings being wild. Probably similar numbers for steelies and wild Atlantics have started showing up after a long, hard effort at reintroduction. The new summer releases have increased the number of wild fish in the Salmon R and it is not just a stockie river. The river is paved with eggs - some have to hatch.

BTW, I used to be a Salmon Heaven guy - can walk down to the river in Altmar, but I've been heading to Fox Hollow more often lately.

The upper reservoir is pretty low, so that area needs some rain for early season flows.