I would definately agree on not harvesting rainbows at this point in time. I am just voicing one of the options that might come down the road. I too have witnessed many counts of poaching where people say oh thats not a legal fish, or oh thats not a rainbow( happens on the SF all the time). Harvesting would be the last option IMO. I hope it never comes to that.

I do see a good amount of stream bread bows when bows are caught by me or someone I am with, but normally its one or two bows.....Not 15.

This is the first time I have been home to fish the J for an extended period of time in over 5 years. So the amount of Rainbows is a shocker.
