A while back ,before whirling disease,every one was convinced the upper Madison river in Montana was over run with rainbows to the detriment of the browns.Fish and game did a shocking and found the browns outnumbered rainbows about 3 to 1.

The browns are more dominate. Chances are the reason you are catching so many more rainbows is because the browns are forcing them into more vulnerable feeding times and stations.Maybe not-try it at night and see what the ratio is.

Just a thought.

Could be LJ is playing games.lol
