I really like an old Orvis Superfine series Far & Fine (7'9" 5wt) that I've been using for years. Good little rollcaster. However, I was reading on a Washington State website that there is apparently a huge cult following for the Cabela's Three Forks 3wt. I'm thinking next spring I may have to give that a try. I find myself favoring smaller streams anyhow and at something like $49 its worth a shot. Too rich for my blood, but a buddy let me try a 2wt Loomis GLX one time. Sweet rod for a small stream, but a tough rod to nymph with.
