I fish the slough in Avon second turnoff heading out of Avon. I find that the morning and evening are the best time to fish that far up. During the day I head down to Hatters inlet and fish. I never liked fishing up at Oregon inlet (too many people). I only fish a straight mono leader 4-5 ft in length (you are not going to scare those fish) to long of a leader will leave a belly in the line and will not stay down. I only fish a full sinking line. Also stripping basket and tuck that rod under your arm and strip at different speeds until you find out what works. If that is not working I usually go for a drive and watch for birds Ocean side. You burn some gas but it can be fun when you find the fish feed close to the surf.

Joe,

Do you use a cane rod for that?
