I fish the J quite often and I too have noticed more rainbows in the last 2 or 3 years. From what I have been told there coming from Spruce Cr. I've noticed that there not just in a specific area they seemed to be well scattered out on the river. Have not caught many rainbows over 14" but I am sure that will happen soon enough just from what I caught and what I am hearing from others. As far as having rainbows in the J. I think the fishery will be able to handle it. There was some talk at one time by the Little Juniata Association about raising rainbows to stock, but I think that was put on the back burner for a while till more studies were done. Well, now that they are in there lets see what happens. I welcome it.
