what wetfly wrote is correct that the idea of establishing wild rainbows in the J through introduction was batted around a bit. Before people get too alarmed about the prospect of the LJRA stocking the j, "raising rainbows to stock" isn't quite what some may think it means.

The idea was to obtain wild rainbow eggs and establish a wild rainbow trout nursery in one of tribs to see if they would take hold in the main branch. They were not talking about the PFBC trucks coming to dump a bunch of raceway pigs into the J (wetfly, I know that's not what you meant, but it could be read that way).

The idea was tabled because concerns were raised and the area they would use for culturing the fish is not ready. I suspect they are taking a wait and see approach to the outcome of the obvious increase in bows on the river.

Again, if anyone has constructive opinions or important information about this topic, bring it to the attention of the LJRA on its website or to its monthly meetings.
