wetfly,

Hasn't been discussed at the meetings or informally for what seems to be a long time (1 year+). In addition to the issues raised in this post, the leaders of the LJRA decided that the following are much greater priorities (not strictly in this order):

1. having it declared class-A and water of high value (or whatever the term is to get addition protections)
2. secure fishing easements to maintain access
3. improving the river by reducing erosion by stream bank stabilization and monitoring practices at bridge and roadwork construction sites
4. working to improve bottom water release from dams during the summer to keep the river cooler.

improving the river takes priority. I agree.

Low water cleanup planned for Saturday Sept 8th. Life member's banquet that evening. LJRA association meeting tuesday the 11th 7pm. All are great opportunities to talk to the leaders of the LJRA about plans for the river and the possibility of introducing wild bows.
