Water temps depend on weather. But by the end of october there going to be cold. Studs and cleats are a MUST! Let me repeat this if you do not have wader boots with cleats or studs you are going to be miserable. Not to mention there is a certain amount of danger involved. At the least have felt soles and never leave home without you're wading staff and belt. Im not trying to scare anyone but the Salmon River is one of the hardest rivers to wade in, the rocks are like ice and the currents are swift.

I have said this on here before but the most effective "fly" on the salmon river for steelhead and browns is (cough) beads. Im sorry here but fellas but they just flat out fish glo bugs are sucker spawns. It isn't true fly fishing but heck nothing you do up there is. Just ask the fellas in the tackle shops what the best method is they will tell you.
