The Masters on the Dry Fly gives a 'taste' of the authors and dry fly fishing a small resume.

My favor ones from the Michael Migel edit are Haig-Brown, Zern, Wright. I enjoyed almost every article from the book. The other authors like: Richards, Wulff, and Schwiebert have special shelves in my library and to feed the inane bookish side of me I acquired almost every book they "produced".

As a compendium books I also enjoyed "Fishermen's Bounty" edited by Nick Lyons, published by 1970. This is a more ample spectrum of stories from the world of angling.
