Montour is just a stream to fish because it's close. It is by no means a destination. Gets fished hard and fish get dumped at all the bridges along the walking trail. I can guarantee no fish survived the summer. Going to have to wait until the fall stocking.

There are other options though, just none very close. Slippery Rock has a good smallmouth population, or even Erie if the steelhead start to run soon. Or just check out some local lakes for warm water fish too. Raccoon Creek State Park isn't too far from that and there can be some good fishing there.
