In the original post I bounce between the fishery as a whole and the sanctuary/refuge area. Sorry for the confusion. The refuge area cannot be protected by landowners only we the fisherman who have knowledge of it and the PAF&BC can protect it. The water is navigable. I take it for granted that anyone reading this post is "Like Minded" in that protection for wild trout would be a common interest.

If you were to locate a Cold Water Refuge (CWR) area, Would you protect it in the manner that I have tried to? What would you do different? Would you call all your buddies and tell them what you found and where? The CWR is a staging area for a spawning run of fish, not just fish seeking refuge.
