There's an old abandoned golf course near me and there is still one spring fed pond remaining. The fairways are all grown over and it doesn't even appear like a golf course anymore.

I am always looking for new places to fish. When I came over a hill and saw the pond was still holding water I was excited. I suspected it still had water being that a small spring runs along it.

Caught this guy on a small clouser minnow I tied myself...was lurking just out past the smaller ones. One helluva scrappy fighter on my two weight fly rod.
