

---

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Natural gas drilling accident along the Loyalsock?

Pipeline construction accident along the Loyalsock?

Author: : FarmerDave

Date: : 2012/9/12 7:53:48

URL:

OMG, the sky has fallen!

How is anyone going to take us serious when we call this a drilling accident when all it was is construction silt.

And H-A, No disrespect intended, but it doesn't look all that funny or unusual to me. Not good, but not funny or unusual.

It's the color of any low and nearly dry creek when you stir it up. It looks like the crick that flows through my property when it is very low and gets stirred up a little and it is normally gin clear.

With water that low and likely a little green from being slow and warm, it doesn't take much to cloud it up.

I'm sorry, but I don't see this as a huge deal. A single idiot on a 3 wheeler could cause that much.

The construction company should be cited for not controlling runoff, but contrary to the guy on the video, this was not destruction or systematic.

P.S. I changed the title on my response to at least match what apparently happened.