

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : wading staff?

Re: wading staff?

Author: : nymphingmaniac

Date: : 2012/9/12 12:04:30

URL:

I will say that nothing beats the sturdiness a solid wooden staff. I used the broomstick method at first, but found that for the few times I used the staff it was a hassle to drag it along and having fish and line tangle in it. Furthermore, I was less likely to take it along because of these reasons, which almost got me in trouble a few times. I looked for a folding alternative because I only use it sparingly at difficult crossings. Once I get to the age where I use the staff regularly, I will go back to the broomstick/wooden option. They just work better and are ready to use.