

Subject: : Conservation

Topic: : Natural gas drilling accident along the Loyalsock?

Re: Natural gas drilling accident along the Loyalsock?

Author: : GreenWeenie

Date: : 2012/9/12 15:50:31

URL:

Consistency? Where's the consistency in these arguments?

It's a tragedy, the world must know about it, and heads must roll when a contractor performing something unpopular like natural gas fracking has an accident not even associated with gas fracking (it was digging a trench for a pipeline) and gets some silt in a heavily stocked stream – national tragedy - yet nobody seems to care when TU puts heavy equipment in a world class wild trout stream for 4 weeks straight to redesign it in order to make it more easily fishable for the masses and in the process silts the freaken crap out of it downstream destroying lots of habitat and causing fish kills – that's progress and habitat improvement.

So I guess there's good silt and bad silt.