I have also asked permission to fish golf course ponds, and was promptly denied. I decided to night fish two of the courses anyways. I was just far to curious to not do it. Plus, I never asked to fish them at night, so the course owners MAY have allowed it. Anyways, one was a bust and spent half the night ducking behind bushes when cars drove by 50 yards away. The other was good stuff. My brother and I hit 3-4 ponds that night and did well. Still, for those that have ever wondered, the fishing wasnt as good as you have dreamed while walking passed towards your ball. The one pond I continually spotted 18-20" bass in the shallows during the fall. I should probably go back and give it another shot to see if that one night was a fluke. BTW, I do not condone sneaking onto golf courses and fishing without permission, but sometimes you need to bend/break the rules a bit in the pursuit of angling passion.
