I have never camped their but I can give you some advice. I do not know if you have ever fished the Catt? I would be careful trekking around as more than half of the creek is on Indian reservation. You can fish on the Reservation but you have to buy there license and park on their property. Let me also add that they don't really want you there and if you ask around you will hear some real horror stories.

The other thing about the Catt is she always blows out. Im not sure what it is but she blows out if it sprinkles. IMHO the NY part of lake erie has some awesome fishing all close to each other why limit yourself to one creek? NY creeks generally have less people WAY bigger fish and there all close to each other. Try them all you wont be disappointed.
