Totally agree but I do see the other side of the argument too. We need a mechanism where we can say what we want without lurkers seeing it but still be a resource to the part of the community that shares their knowledge. It's definitely a tough balance, I don't think there is an easy answer. I like what PCray and PSU suggest but doubt you'd get enough people willing to open up like that. Then there's people like me whose spent his entire fishing life fishing certain streams and now wants to branch out and fish the little gems. I don't have anything people don't already know to share, so should I even benefit from the knowledge base. No easy answers.
