One thing I forgot to mention- if we were to name a bunch of smaller, lesser-known streams, it would be a bad idea to not include info about how to properly treat the resource. Most anglers in PA don't understand or have never heard of the concept of wild trout. It would be a wasted opportunity to just name 500 decent streams without also doing something to better inform the average angler about how a wild trout population works. Whether or not this would be enough to ease the fear of what lurkers would do to someone's home stream, probably not.

Me too, unfortunately.
