Hey guys, was up last Tuesday, now headed up in a few hours.

I fished Elk and Walnut last week with a handful of hookups and no fish landed after my fly reel decided to go A wall.

Fish were in OK numbers but clarity and flow made it hard. I knoww this rain is coming in fact its raining here in Butler so hopefully we catch a rise in water and a decrease in clarity and hook a few... the main problem with the fish was that they were trapped in low oxygenated water and werent even properly facing the flows to get good DO2 numbers. I think with the numbers we saw last week and a ffew reports of more making theyre way in after a spike in flow this weekend there maybe some fish to had.

I'll be sure to post a report tomorrow evening after the trip...
