If you want to fish a beautiful stretch, try the Glen Onoko area. Make sure to bring your bike and use the rail to trail path along the river. Head up river and look for some fishy runs...they will be easy to find.

Forget the tully box of flies and fish larger size nymph patterns. Prince nymphs may be effective this time of year as the Slate Drakes should still be hatching. Stonefly, Hares Ear or PT patterns are always good too. Smaller nymph imitations for BWOs may be effective as well.

Water levels are extremely low and it should be relatively easy to get around. Still bring the studded boots and wading staff. Not sure what today's rains will bring, but I wouldn't expect too much of an increase in the river levels.

Feel free to use this inter-active map to find some access locations.
