

Subject: : Hatch and Entomology Forum

Topic: : Dave Wolf's Sept-Oct 'Cream Cahill'

Re: Dave Wolf's Sept-Oct 'Cream Cahill'

Author: : OldLefty

Date: : 2012/9/19 11:46:17

URL:

PCray, I agree with you. BTW, I don't believe any of us are experts when it comes to common names.

When you mention confusion even among "experts," which I identify as entomologists, I was really enlightened when I conducted my research for my article "Paraleps" which appeared in Fly Fisherman Mag. back in the mid-90's. There was obvious conflict between references/authors/entomologists when it came to identifying some of the later season species. I would believe this is what drives so many changes so frequently in the critter identification world.

One point: back in the day I was just beginning to develop my interest in identifying critters, Little Maryatt was a common name along with Pale Evening Dun for Ephemerella dorothea dorothea.