Sounds similar to my setup except I use a uni to uni knot to attach my 2 sections between the loops on each end...not sure if that would make it anymore streamlined though.

I've heard of guys using shrink tubing up at the fly line connection to reduce hangups from the knots. But this seemed like way to much of a pain, so i never looked into it.

Maybe use a single piece of leader material to avoid the extra knot(s) between line/tippet/fly?

Perhaps TD/Paco can chime in once they are back from their Wisco trip.

p.s. 4 in a day is more than I've seen all year...good stuff!
