

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : So a question for the rod builders...

Re: So a question for the rod builders...

Author: : DJBerg

Date: : 2012/9/19 21:28:48

URL:

So I should cut the guide out? Then re wrap it? So the guide wrapping, given its only a half inch. Is not enough? I was sort of hoping that would be enough. It was sheer luck that to fit the tip of the st croix on the othe pole's factory male part and have it fit to the same spot as the old tip section, nice and snug with the cut on the st croix landing literally 1mm away from the start of the guide wrapping.

That's why I was wondering if I could just cut the guide off and leave the wrapping for structural strength?

Oh and thinking it was gonna be good to go, I went and hooked it to a 30" carp and the pole had no problems what so ever! Pretty happy about that along with the flex of the pole being uniform through the curve with the carp on it.

So far I'm really happy with it, and it now has its own joke of it being a $40 pole with a $300 tip! Lol