I missed four aggressive fish the other day due to the knots hanging up or making noise scraping the guide.

Interesting - I've never heard of this before, esp the part about knots making noise and causing muskies to miss. I'm guessing there's some other issue. But, with that said, I use the same leader set-up that I use for bass except for the tippet:

BUTT: 50lb connected with a splice to the fly line

BELLY/TIPPET: 20lb w/blood knot

Overall leader would be about 6-7 feet.
