I was listening to the news and New Jersey now has statewide disposal sites for people to dispose old medicine & drugs. They are placing marked old mail boxes around the state, can be used 24x7.

News said a company is disposing of the material at no cost to the state.

Since some of the contamination in some fish studies has been found to be medicine & other drugs, wouldn't it be a good idea to do this in PA as well? Much better than flushng down the drain & into the waterways.
