Maurice,

I think everything in your post is very accurate. I think that the presence of a substantial wild trout population played a role in the decision to not stock the Little Sandy this year. I think that is a good thing.

This is just the next step in a progression. Each year it costs more to create, raise, and transport stocked trout and each year we sell fewer licenses. The trout stocking program as we know it today is no more sustainable than it was twenty ago. For years the PFBC has stocked fewer and fewer trout because of the costs.

I like your idea for a stamp, I said the same thing and more here.
