

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : fishing a two weight

fishing a two weight

Author: : lv2nymph

Date: : 2012/10/7 18:12:45

URL:

Got a two weight from here on the forum, casts great it's a fun rod. Went out with it today for the first time, caught eight brookies and promptly lost all of them. The ninth was the heart breaker, at least 15" of sweet brookie in a three foot wide stream. Finally got a few to hand as it started raining. I'm thinking it's the amount of pressure that I'm putting on them? The rod does alot of bouncing around I'm definetly not used to this as I've never fished with one before. Any of you two weight users have any advise? Or did I just have a bad day out? I do feel as though I've just been schooled. 🙄 Thanks, Jack