I know some people will argue that you need a good reel but for stripers it's not as critical as for albies and blues. Bass tend to make short slow runs. But you will probably need a new reel. Lamson are the reels I use. It's got a great drag system and a big spool. The Konic it's what I use for my 10 wt and it a great reel. Cost about 100 bucks but I think you could find it cheaper somewhere online. Nothing like catching a bass on the beach. IMO saltwater in general is 10 times better then anything else. The salt would deffently be something you would want to check out. It a whole new world of fishing nothing any trout fishing.
