Mo.....it's a good pecking order but it seems when there is a problem it's usually with the cementing/hydraulic fracturing companies , reading the lists of accidents that were cited as violations , most of the time the reason is listed as "Casing failure" , to me that means that somewhere within the area that could get into the aquifer the casing cracks , breaks , etc. seems to me the ones we should be hating on the most are THEM. Also these companies are the ones that refuse to disclose the exact recipes of the cocktail of stuff they use to do their portion of the deed.
