

---

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Public Meeting on Muskie Management - Oct 2nd

Re: Public Meeting on Muskie Management - Oct 2nd

Author: : joel

Date: : 2012/10/12 14:37:27

URL:

It is the same situation in my area too.it is heavily stocked with trout by local clubs and they always complain about them eating them all.I personally think think the trout guys do more damage with over harvesting and not keeping the deeply hooked fish.the other thing is that the water gets too warm in the summer for the fish to hold over anyways.muskies might eat 1% but I highly doubt that with the sucker rich environment they have.they also complain about them eating smallies.smallies eat their own and are way more populated to do damage to their kind.people just dont understand these fish can't be replaced overnight.once they are gone it takes millions of dollars to replace any great musky water,and still may never be the same.I release all fish they are too beautiful to destroy.I am not against people keeping fish its everybodys right if they buy a license. The thing is you can take pictures and I measurements now to get them mounted and you can release it for someone else to catch for a great memory.people just dont understand that where im from. Just wanted to thank all of you guys that sent comments too