

---

Subject: : Gear Talk

Topic: : Fish pimp indicators falling off of your leader?

Re: Fish pimp indicators falling off of your leader?

Author: : mute

Date: : 2008/5/21 18:40:36

URL:

never really understood why people use the palso pinch ons, we'll, actually theyre good for really spooky trout, and i guess the putty too. I just know when i was fishing for a good amount of the day i would go through so many adjusting my depth. The best kidn of found are the football indicators for 0.80c each. Which come in very small to very large sizes. Never had any problems with them sliding off the leader or breaking them off or anything. It just seems the indicators like the toothpick ball ones would be a hassle, i wold think you would want to deal with the least amount of little accessories as possible. And have the most versatile indicator. That acn be quickly adjusted and rely on itsself.