

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Penns Creek/Centre and Union Countie

Re: Penns Creek/Centre and Union Countie

Author: : mutzinbaugh

Date: : 2012/10/22 23:02:31

URL:

when in doubt stop in and talk to the "egg boss". at least if nothing else you will get a laugh. i have been up at the penns for the last 4 weekends, each day it has been low but there are some small browns there. where did all of the big ones go?

3 weeks ago my buddy landed (casting a new furred leader on my rod) a 6ish inch rainbow as silver as a nickle with amazing color. definitely not a whitefish/fall fish. that was the first one we caught like that in the penns over 10 years of fishing it...has anyone else ever caught anything like this, i think it had to be wild.

2 years ago hunting up in the havice valley in mid archery season we stoped at the corner of hoofnagle and longwell draft hollow road at the bridge and saw a wild brown...i can't say how far that is from weikert but it has to be at least 2 miles up weikert run. do the brownies leave the penns to spawn?