The plan is to stock Donegal Ck C&R FFO with fall "fingerling" RT from 2012 through 2015 with follow-up electrofishing evaluation of survival, growth, and abundance. It has recently received its first fall stocking of RT fingerlings (using the term "fingerlings" loosely in that the fish were about 7-8 or more inches long, given the time spent in the hatchery). No adult trout will be stocked in this stretch-spring or fall-throughout the study period and, as a side-light, it will be interesting to me to see the response, if any, in the very low density wild brown trout population.
