

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : Donegal C&R FFO: fall fingerling RT stocked

Re: Donegal C&R FFO: fall fingerling RT stocked

Author: : salmonoid

Date: : 2012/10/24 13:37:56

URL:

Quote:

Mike wrote:

There is a low density of wild browns in the stream and an extremely low density of apparently wild rainbows as well. The stocked rainbows are marked for later identification. As to the question of whether or not a larger population of wild rainbows will result from increased spawning success, I'm not even certain or betting that the stocked fingerlings will survive in acceptable numbers, let alone add to spawning success.

I have caught one wild/streamborn brook out of Donegal years ago, and my buddy caught a gorgeous 17" holdover (if not wild) brookie there years ago as well. I don't know if the state ever stocked brookies or if the Donegal Fish and Conservation club put them in..