I forgot to report back to Fishidiot and tell him all the bigger smallmouth have disappeared from that small trib I was talking about. fish in the 6-11" range were still present and numerous throughout, but the 12"+ guys were gone. They must have dropped back down into the main stream as he predicted.

I was really hoping I would be able to get out once more this season, but I just dont know if I will. Either way, pretty good year of small stream fishing for me. Fished some new stretches that are a total PITA to get to, but they were worth it. I have a list of new stretches I want to explore next year.
