I've fished the lower canyon quite a bit - from tiadaghton down to blackwell. Very pretty area, with some long pools that are good dry fly water.

The first time I did it, I hiked along the bike trail. Good bit of walking involved there.

Then I tried hiking down from the rim along a couple trails that come in around that third bridge. That hike back up after a days fishing is pretty tough - and I don't recommend it.

I finally started biking in along the rail trail. And that is definitely the best way to go IMO
