

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : The Pine:Bottom of the Canyon

Re: The Pine:Bottom of the Canyon

Author: : Swattie87

Date: : 2012/10/26 10:49:49

URL:

The Turkey Path is the one coming down from Leonard Harrison SP on the east rim correct? Runs along Little Four Mile Run with the water falls?

If that's the one you mean, yes there are stairs with railings in the steeper spots and a few larger deck areas near the waterfalls. My wife and I hiked it this Summer. Not too bad in terms of rugged terrain as it's a well hiked and maintained trail, but it's steep (800 ft elevation gain in about a mile), and yes you'll be sucking wind at the top. I've also driven down into Tiadaghton too, and biked in from the north end by Darling Run. The most effective way in just depends on which part you want to fish and/or to some degree your physical conditioning if you want to hike down from the rim.