Just wondering why nobody offers a wading boot with a zipper instead of laces. The BOA system would not be for me, I hate to have equipment failures on the job.....

Several boot manufacturers started offering boots with zippers on the sides about 8-10 years ago. I never tried them. But if I remember correctly, they still had laces on them. I guess the idea was that once you had the laces tied to fit your foot right - you could leave them that way, and just use the zippers to put them on and off.

Can't recall seeing them lately though

Dear Biggie and others,

Try Orvis

http://www.orvis.com/store/product.as ... t\_id=5421&subcat\_id=10664

I have never tried them so I won't vouch for them.

Regards,

Tim Murphy 😊
