Ryan sent me some of his 6wt fly line to use. I put it on my Fenwick and used it this past weekend. Besides the orange looking AWESOME, it casts really nicely. I'll definitely be purchasing more lines in different weights in the near future. Is it just me, Ryan, or is the diameter a little thinner than other 6wt lines? I had the SA Air Cel on prior to this line, and this line seems just a shade thinner. I'm not complaining, you see, 'cause on glass the guides are smaller than graphite rods. Its actually a benefit to me.
