

Subject: : Fly Fishing Locations

Topic: : White Clay Creek

White Clay Creek

Author: : sjangler

Date: : 2012/11/16 10:20:37

URL:

Fished White Clay yesterday (11/15). Conditions were 55 degrees, water low and clear

My companion and I were struck by the very low numbers of fish. We spent about 4 hours and visited familiar lies from Good Hope Road, down past the bridge on Indian Tract (?)

Lies that, in the past, have typically held decent numbers of fish only seemed to have one or two, or in some cases zero.

Does anyone know if somehow it wasn't stocked even tho it was on the schedule? I know it is poached but there were no signs of it on this trip at all, unlike past visits.

Any thoughts or ideas?