

---

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : SR in Mid November

Re: SR in Mid November

Author: : PhilC

Date: : 2012/11/16 11:32:59

URL:

Quote:

pwk5017 wrote:

1" thingamabobbers!?!?! holy heck, thats like throwing a balloon. I have the 1/2" ones and they are borderline comical in size.

How does the SR fish in december? I have a friend that moved up that way 2 months ago and he was asking me about coming up for a short trip in december. 6 hour drive is a big time commitment for me, when erie is 2.25 hrs away

I've used the same 1/4" bobber for on trout for 2 yrs now so I know what ya mean.

But yes even up to 1" can be necessary...usually you can get away 1/2" but somtimes that won't keep you're weight up. I had to borrow a 1/2" from by buddy and ended up adding a lil 1/4" becuase it wouldn't stay up in the pockets...the 2 indy rig had some unplanned advantages like making it easier to see where you're line is...will try that again

My go-to up there is usually a 3/4" indy

It can fish very well in December depending on the timing of the run...I was just up there for 4 days and it was tough for mid-Nov...who knows how it will be in a couple weeks, but maybe at least there's less people