I'm looking to pick up my first book on choosing the right fly at the right time (my current struggle). There's a new book by Charles Meck called "Matchng Hatches Made Easy" that was released this year, but I can't find any reviews on it. Has anyone read it? And if so, would you recommend it? The alternative books I'm considering would be "Handbook of Hatches" by David Hughes or one of Meck's earlier books.
