Ohio, that is a very practicle approach and I appreciate the good advice. I was thinking about all this today and I just cant justify a high end purchase for a rod and reel for this, Im not even sure this will be a lasting venture or a quick passing fad for me, Ive never even held a fly rod :)

When I first started Bass fishing about 6 years ago I bought a real expensive Casting combo, which went practically unused for more than 4 years because I just didnt like the way it fished.

I will be heading to Cabelas on my next four days off which will be this Tue, Wed, Thur and Friday. And maybe I can try to get to scotts run or go to hopewell just to get some casting practice.

Thanks again

Bob
