

Subject: : Warm Water & Salt Water Fly-Fishing

Topic: : Toothy Critter Success Thread

Re: Toothy Critter Success Thread

Author: : PACOFRANSICO

Date: : 2012/11/26 22:24:47

URL:

I use two hooks in my flies not so much as a stinger but for action and length. If tyed right a tandem swims like a jointed rapala.

In all my toothies 2 were taken on a single hook pattern. But they have there place too. Sometimes due to water clarity & they just get locked in on a smaller prey item.

In my opinion when they strike a prey item they prefer to take it broadside. They hold it shake it and position it in there mouth for a head 1st swallow. My small flys are 7 to 8 inches and my triples can get upto 14 inches long.