

Subject: : Tips and Tricks

Topic: : winter fly fishing

Re: winter fly fishing

Author: : Fishidiot

Date: : 2012/11/27 8:08:18

URL:

Quote:

buckmaster wrote:

So what's the best dry flys for November.

Well, obviously, we're pretty much past that now, however, for November, I tend to do well on terrestrials such as hornets, flying ants and beetles. Usually by about this time at the end of the month when it gets cold, the terrestrial bite fades....but it never completely stops. If you find a sipping fish in mid winter, don't rule out a small ant or beetle - they still work. Otherwise, for winter the main dries I use (and I suspect this is true for up in your neck of the woods) would be black and cream midges, little black stones, and small BWOs.