I fished Slippery Rock and Hell run a little bit on Sunday. Didn't get anything on SRC, but didn't fish long either. Since it was low and clear I went up on the bridge to see if I could spot any but I didn't. I'm sure theres still some left though. I fished the upper part of Hell Run(still below the waterfall though, above it is almost dry now) and it is super low. Didn't catch any, and I looked around for fish on redds and didn't see any either. I've never seen it that low. I'd wait till spring to fish there.

Neshannock is an option. It's not fishing real good though. I posted a report last Wednesday I think.
