zfisher, if you are looking into catching pike or musky I would go much bigger than what you are tying. The flies look nice but are on the small side. I personally would tie nothing smaller than 3/0. Even with the bigger flies you are going to get bonus fish such as walleye smallies, and largemouth. You likely will not catch as many with a tandem 6/0 as you would with a single 3/0 or tandem 3/0 but you are triggering responses from the bigger fish (36" or better). Dont get me wrong the bigger fish will eat smaller flies but the smaller fish will definitely eat bigger flies as well. I have caught 2 foot pike on 15" triples. Tie as big as you can comfortably cast and build yourself up to bigger stuff.
