The time I almost saw a bear:

Went looking for Quebec Run. Never thought I found it. It was supposed to be a trib to another stocked water. I got to where I thought it would be and there was this little trickle. I went down to its mouth and fished a little ways upward. Heard a bear nearby calling cubs and got scurred, being deep in the woods alone. Went home to later learn that the stream below the trickle was actually called Quebec. Never went back. One day I will.
